Tonight at Art Center: Native Seeds \(exhibition of work by Legal Art grant finalists\)

Saturday June 24th 2006, 12:50 pm

Filed under: Art, Miami, Grants, Workshops and Residencies, Receptions, Openings and Lectures

On Miami Beach tonight (June 24, 2006) at Art Center (800 Lincoln Road), the opening of an exhibition titled Native Seeds of work by the Legal Art grant finalists. Exhibiting artists are: Bhakti Baxter, Cooper, Jacin Giordano, Jiae Hwang, Pepe Mar, Emily Martinez, Brandon Opalka, Norberto Rodriguez, Frances Trombly, and Wendy Wischer.

From 7 - 10 PM.

A nice selection of work...the Opalka seemed odd in the group, although it was a nice painting something seemed strange even though Giordano had a painting in the show...the paintings seemed "out of place" Bhakti has done stronger work, he seemed to "phone this one in"....Jiae Hwang continues to amaze me...I want to make a blanket out of her drawings and go to sleep for a million years. Emily Martinez's work is always fresh....she should be given a truck load of film and enough money to travel around the world several times, let's see what develops. I've seen Cooper do more daring work, his two drawings were "safe", he really excels when he creates objects and environments. Bert is Bertrific, as usual....he can do no wrong. I predict he will receive a Nobel Prize for Art when they create a Nobel Prize for Art.

These are merely some coffee fueled observations.
